- Implementing activities which enhance the practice of nursing while promoting a healthy community.

Thank you for your interest in applying for The Ohio State University Fellowship for Nursing Government Advocacy. A program overview of the Fellowship and instructions are provided along with the application. Please read the document carefully.

Program Overview

The OSU Fellowship for Nursing Government Advocacy is a 12-month program designed to provide an opportunity for nurses at The Ohio State University to experience the full spectrum of advocacy by developing the skills to effectively engage with public officials and participate in the public process of decision-making. The Fellowship will begin in July 2022, culminating with a completed policy project and presentation in June 2023. Up to two individuals will be selected to dedicate 8 hours weekly to their work as a fellow.

Aims of the Program

The objectives of the Fellowship are to:

- Encourage policy inquiry and innovative problem-solving regarding the public policies and processes that impact nursing practices and health care at The Ohio State University.
- Provide an educational and experiential forum for nurses in influencing and promoting policies, rules and laws that benefit the nursing profession and health care.
- Develop nurses' leadership skills in identifying and analyzing issues, locating and appraising information, developing options and plans to address the issues, and disseminating updates and results to inform nurses throughout the university.
- Cultivate the professional growth and development of Ohio State nurses in navigating the public sector of policy and decision-making.

Central to the success of the fellowship is the partnership of the fellow with staff of the Office of Government Affairs, nurse leaders, and the Ohio State nursing community as a whole. The Office of Government Affairs will arrange and coordinate the information, skills and practical experience for the fellowship, and its staff will serve as mentors. The mentors will assist the fellows in developing and implementing a project aimed at addressing an issue of importance to the nursing profession. Mentors will also assist the fellows in working collaboratively with key staff and leaders, internal and external to Ohio State.

Fellows will participate in a variety of educational programs to promote their professional development in advocacy. The fellowship program includes educational sessions, group activities and self-directed learning activities in order to promote the fellow's learning and to facilitate a successful understanding of how laws, rules and policy can be influenced.
